Still living in the shadow of the gun

WAUGH ON WEDNESDAY

The bishops, the clinic and the polls

OPINION

THE CHICKEN AND EGG VIEW OF DECOMMISSIONING

Many should be the烟台 the smoke of a deposed king

Brian Patten

The Belfast Telegraph

2003

VIEWPOINT

Divided Ulster

THERE is a long way to go before the Ulster establishment and the Catholic Church finally understand that there is a Catholic Ulster. A Catholic Ulster that is not just a Catholic Ulster of its own people, but a Catholic Ulster of the whole of the people of Ulster, regardless of their religion. We have a long way to go before the Ulster establishment and the Catholic Church finally understand that there is a Catholic Ulster.

The Belfast Telegraph

2003

WRITEBACK

The page where you have YOUR say

WISHES to outline the requirements of the Nationalist community, and in particular the Catholic community. I think the Catholic Church should support the wishes of the Nationalist community, and in particular the Catholic community. The Nationalist community should be supported by the Catholic Church. The Catholic Church should support the wishes of the Nationalist community.

The Belfast Telegraph

2003

Article laid a smoke screen

As someone committed to the Irish nationalist cause, I was disappointed that the author of the article suggested that the Catholic Church is unpatriotic. The Catholic Church is a patriotic institution.

The Belfast Telegraph

2003

Candidates challenged on cross-party

I wish to thank all the candidates from different parties who have supported the Catholic Church in the past and who have continued to support it.

The Belfast Telegraph

2003

SOMEONE TO TALK TO

Could I talk to you about a matter of importance?

The Belfast Telegraph

2003

The facts on the polls

Our different points of view... the polls, the polls, the polls...