THE PRIME Minister is working on plans for a new constitutional formula aimed at breaking the deadlock at the multi-party negotiations.

Details of the proposals, leaked to The Times today, indicate Tony Blair is discussing ideas that would involve a power-sharing executive, similar to the arrangement in Northern Ireland and the Republic of Ireland.

The DUP deputy leader, Seamus Mallon, insists that any agreement that gives power to Sinn Fein could only be achieved through an electoral process.

He said the party would not be part of any agreement which would put Sinn Fein at the centre of the political process.

The DUP has called for a referendum on any agreement.

Blair has said he will travel to Japan for talks with the Japanese prime minister.

The talks are expected to be held in Tokyo on Monday.

The prime minister said the talks would be an opportunity to discuss the situation in Northern Ireland.

He said he would also discuss the issue with the Japanese government.

The talks are expected to be held in Tokyo on Monday.

The prime minister said the talks would be an opportunity to discuss the situation in Northern Ireland.

He said he would also discuss the issue with the Japanese government.

THE PRIME Minister is working on plans for a new constitutional formula aimed at breaking the deadlock at the multi-party negotiations.

Details of the proposals, leaked to The Times today, indicate Tony Blair is discussing ideas that would involve a power-sharing executive, similar to the arrangement in Northern Ireland and the Republic of Ireland.

The DUP deputy leader, Seamus Mallon, insists that any agreement that gives power to Sinn Fein could only be achieved through an electoral process.

He said the party would not be part of any agreement which would put Sinn Fein at the centre of the political process.

The DUP has called for a referendum on any agreement.

Blair has said he will travel to Japan for talks with the Japanese prime minister.

The talks are expected to be held in Tokyo on Monday.

The prime minister said the talks would be an opportunity to discuss the situation in Northern Ireland.

He said he would also discuss the issue with the Japanese government.

THE PRIME Minister is working on plans for a new constitutional formula aimed at breaking the deadlock at the multi-party negotiations.

Details of the proposals, leaked to The Times today, indicate Tony Blair is discussing ideas that would involve a power-sharing executive, similar to the arrangement in Northern Ireland and the Republic of Ireland.

The DUP deputy leader, Seamus Mallon, insists that any agreement that gives power to Sinn Fein could only be achieved through an electoral process.

He said the party would not be part of any agreement which would put Sinn Fein at the centre of the political process.

The DUP has called for a referendum on any agreement.

Blair has said he will travel to Japan for talks with the Japanese prime minister.

The talks are expected to be held in Tokyo on Monday.

The prime minister said the talks would be an opportunity to discuss the situation in Northern Ireland.

He said he would also discuss the issue with the Japanese government.