Hero pilot saves football stars in crash emergency

The stricken plane which had been carrying the Leeds United team lies off the runway at Stansted Airport, while the team's assistant manager David O'Leary, was injured in the crash, arrives back in Leeds today.

EXCLUSIVE POLL ON ULSTER PEACE DEAL

77% SAY YES

NORTHERN Ireland's voters would overwhelmingly back a peace deal supported by a majority of political parties, a survey reveals today.

By Paul Connolly

The poll, conducted by political correspondent Joseph Rowntree and the National Polling Centre (NPC), showed that 77% of voters would back a peace deal, with just 23% opposed.

The poll was conducted by the National Polling Centre and the survey included a representative sample of 1,000 adults aged 18 and over.

The results showed that the majority of voters believed that a peace deal was necessary to bring an end to the violence in Northern Ireland.

By National News

The pilot of an aircraft carrying Leeds United footballers was the hero of a crash landing this morning, saving the lives of the players on board.

The pilot, who was the assistant manager of the club, David O'Leary, was injured in the crash, which occurred at Stansted Airport.

The crash occurred after the plane landed and was damaged, with the team's assistant manager, David O'Leary, injured in the crash.

NAKED

The National Polling Centre (NPC) is an independent research organisation that conducts surveys on a variety of topics.

The centre's director, Joseph Rowntree, said: "The results of this survey show that the majority of Northern Ireland's voters believe in a peace deal and support the political parties that have backed it.

"The findings also show that the majority of voters believe that a peace deal is necessary to bring an end to the violence in Northern Ireland.

"The results of this survey show that the majority of Northern Ireland's voters believe in a peace deal and support the political parties that have backed it."