Belfast Telegraph

Thursday February 21 2003

FEATURES/OPINION 13

Massive cash plan is historic bonus

PUBLIC SPENDING: London delivers but Stornmont must decide priorities

AGovernment has never been so keen in Northern Ireland to, with hundreds of billions of pounds down the line, we must look to what is happening in the future as well. The future government in Northern Ireland must be funded.

The broad outline of the plans advanced by direct rule minister (an Taoiseach) Brian Lenihan, who is responsible for the new Irish government, is a huge step forward in reducing the power of the UK government in Northern Ireland. The new government will have the power to make decisions on a range of issues, including health, education, and social services. This is a significant change from the past, where decisions were made by the UK government.

However, the proposals also raise concerns about the future of the devolved government in Northern Ireland. The new government will have the power to make decisions on a range of issues, including health, education, and social services. This is a significant change from the past, where decisions were made by the UK government.

The new government will have the power to make decisions on a range of issues, including health, education, and social services. This is a significant change from the past, where decisions were made by the UK government.

The new government will have the power to make decisions on a range of issues, including health, education, and social services. This is a significant change from the past, where decisions were made by the UK government.

The new government will have the power to make decisions on a range of issues, including health, education, and social services. This is a significant change from the past, where decisions were made by the UK government.

The new government will have the power to make decisions on a range of issues, including health, education, and social services. This is a significant change from the past, where decisions were made by the UK government.

The new government will have the power to make decisions on a range of issues, including health, education, and social services. This is a significant change from the past, where decisions were made by the UK government.

The new government will have the power to make decisions on a range of issues, including health, education, and social services. This is a significant change from the past, where decisions were made by the UK government.

The new government will have the power to make decisions on a range of issues, including health, education, and social services. This is a significant change from the past, where decisions were made by the UK government.

The new government will have the power to make decisions on a range of issues, including health, education, and social services. This is a significant change from the past, where decisions were made by the UK government.

The new government will have the power to make decisions on a range of issues, including health, education, and social services. This is a significant change from the past, where decisions were made by the UK government.

The new government will have the power to make decisions on a range of issues, including health, education, and social services. This is a significant change from the past, where decisions were made by the UK government.

The new government will have the power to make decisions on a range of issues, including health, education, and social services. This is a significant change from the past, where decisions were made by the UK government.

The new government will have the power to make decisions on a range of issues, including health, education, and social services. This is a significant change from the past, where decisions were made by the UK government.

The new government will have the power to make decisions on a range of issues, including health, education, and social services. This is a significant change from the past, where decisions were made by the UK government.

The new government will have the power to make decisions on a range of issues, including health, education, and social services. This is a significant change from the past, where decisions were made by the UK government.